One of the healthiest places in the world, so far as relates to fever, is Mauritius, in the Indian ocean.

One of the unhealthiest in the same respect is Jamaica, in the Caribbean Sea. Both Islands lay in the same latitudes—one on the south and the other on the north side of the equator. They are alike in their topographical features. The same causes seem to be operating in both. Why then the difference?

They have distressingly delicate ladies in New Orleans. The Picayune states that on the 29th of September, 1840, a lady inquired in a store for some hose confusers; or stocken fasteners. She would not have said garters for the world.

New Remedy for the Toothache.—A doctor in Portland announces, as the last remedy for toothache, that the mouth must be filled with cream—then you are to bump your head against the wall until it turns to butter. Query, the wall, the cream, or the head?—Picayune.

We think it was the patient himself who became the butter.

Retort.—"My son," said an affectionate mother to her son, who resided at a distance, and expected in a short time to be married, "you are getting very thin." "Yes, mother," he replied, "I am, and when you see me next, I think you will see my rib."

Pennsylvania.

We have not yet received the official vote of this State, but from the different returns in our possession, we are of opinion that Van Buren has the State by about 500.

Horror of the Guillotine.

In the south, toward the close of last September, the following circumstance occurred—I think it was at Pamiers:—The officers went to a man in prison, whom they found quietly playing at cards, and gave him notice that he was to die in two hours. The wretched creature was horror-struck: for, during the six months that he had been forgotten, he had no longer thought on death; he was confessed, bound, his hair cut off, he was placed in the fatal cart, and taken to the place of execution: the executioner took him from the priest, laid him down and bound him on the guillotine, and then let loose the axe. The heavy triangle of iron slowly detached itself, falling by jerks down the side, until, horrible to relate, it wounded the man without killing him! The poor creature uttered a frightful cry. The disconcerted executioner hauled up the axe, and let it slide down again. A second time the neck of the malefactor was wounded, without being severed. Again he shrieked, the crowd joining him, the executioner raised the axe a third time, but no better effect attended a third stroke.

Let me abridge these fearful details. Five times the axe was raised and let fall, and after the fifth stroke the condemned was still shrieking for mercy. The indignant populace commenced throwing missiles at the executioner, who hid himself beneath the guillotine, and crept away behind the gendarmes' horses; but I have not yet finished. The hapless culprit, seeing he was left alone on the scaffold, raised himself on the plank, and there standing, frightful, streaming with blood, demanded with feeble cries that some one should unbind him! The populace, full of pity, were on the point of forcing the gendarmes to help the hapless wretch, who had five times undergone his sentence. At this moment a servant of the executioner, a youth under twenty, mounted on the scaffold, told the sufferer to turn round that he might unbind him, then, taking the advantage of the posture of the dying man, who had yielded himself without any mist, sprang on him and slowly cut through the neck with a knife. All this happened, all this was seen. According to law, a judge was obliged to be present at this execution. By a sign he could have stopped all. Why was he leaning back in his carriage then, this man, while they massacred another man? What was he doing, this punisher of assassins, while they thus assassinated, in open day, their fellow creature? And the judge was not tried for this; and the executioner was not tried for it; and no tribunal inquired into this monstrous violation of all law on one of God's creatures.
